

TUTORIAL QUESTIONS

1. Why are activity methods seen to be better than rote learning methods in teaching children?
2. Why are the use of rote learning methods still predominant in teaching in Ghana?
3. Are activity methods the same as the discovery method? Why?
4. What the difference between the brainstorming method and the discussion method in teaching?
5. What are the various forms of the discussion method used in teaching?
6. What is the difference between the discussion method and cooperative learning?
7. What are simulation methods? Why are they called simulation methods? What are the different forms of simulations methods?
8. What questions should teachers ask themselves when taking a decision about which teaching method to use?
9. What's the difference between a case study in research and a case study as a method of teaching?
10. Why would any teacher choose to use a time-consuming activity such as a role play in teaching learners?
11. What's the difference between an educational visit and an excursion? What's the difference between an educational visit and a field experience?
12. Distinguish between inductive methods and deductive methods? Which methods of instruction can serve as examples of each?